The work of YUM in Central Kalimantan has taken another giant step forward with the opening of the new YUM office in Suka Mulya, Bukit Batu.

On 17 March, Mrs. Teras Narang, the wife of the Governor of Central Kalimantan, officially opened the office that will provide a base for YUM's expanding activities in the region.

The new office will provide a comfortable working environment for the full-time staff that manage and deliver YUM's projects in the Bukit Batu region and forms part of the 'YUM Village'.

The 'Village' also includes a new library and resource centre for the local community to use and a guesthouse.

Olvia Reksodipoetro, YUM Chair, with Mrs. Teras Narang, the wife of the Governor of Central Kalimantan

YUM Chair, Olvia Reksodipoetro said the development of the 'YUM Village' was a signal of YUM's long-term commitment to working in Central Kalimantan.

"Over the last few years, we have expanded our health, education and community development projects in the region," Olvia said. continued, page 4

Palangka Raya Mayor launches "inside residual spraying" & bednets for Malaria control program

In April of this year, the Mayor of Palangka Raya Municipality, representatives and guests, as well as 150 women from the community were present to officially witness the first spraying of a house in Habaring Hurung and the distribution of insecticide treated bed nets to a small number of families with young children.

The groups of sprayers then proceeded to continue and spray close to 450 houses in Habaring Hurung and Marang where the same number of families were also provided with impregnated bednets in the correct sizes for which they willingly paid a small fee which will be used by YUM to accommodate families in the program which will move into the project area in the coming three years.

Dr. Sinto (YUM Malaria Project Coordinator - right) gives instructions to the sprayers

The Mayor of Palangka Raya reiterated his support for the project and thanked YUM for undertaking this pioneering work in the region. This is the first time an NGO has partnered with local government institutions and community representatives to deliver a malaria control project in the province. Residents of continued, page 9

From the Chair...

Since 2005, Yayasan Usaha Mulia (YUM) has made great strides forward thanks, in part, to the hard work and dedication of our outgoing Executive Director – Prasetya Subekti – and his team. YUM is now solid and stable, and it finds itself well-positioned to start projecting and planning further into the future with our new Executive Director – Turmizi Ali.

Our first strategic plan, just finalized, is a relatively conservative one. While constantly identifying new ways through which we could assist the poor, our plans are to first fully consolidate our current range of services over the next few years before embarking on new initiatives. We anticipate that this will serve to strengthen our organisation as well as our individual projects, and expect that our beneficiaries will experience improved services, with lasting benefits.

Four strategic goals were identified during this exercise:

1. To pursue continued improvements to the implementation of our existing projects so as to ensure greater impact on the lives of project beneficiaries.
2. To establish a formal fundraising and public relations team, which will diversify and grow YUM's funding base.
3. To build the capacity of YUM staff to implement projects in a professional, efficient and effective manner.
4. To establish a stronger presence in Central Kalimantan in preparation for future growth of activities within this region.

This Strategic Plan for 2009-2011 will guide our work through what is likely to be a busy and productive period.

Special thanks go to our senior AusAID volunteer – Candice O'Brien – whose contribution towards strengthening YUM's organisation is invaluable. Thanks also to our second AusAID volunteer Tim Naughtin, who is revitalizing all communication aspects of YUM.

And last but not least, thanks to our dedicated staff at all levels of the organization, and to you all for your support.

With warm greetings,

Olvia

Governor's wife opens new YUM office in Central Kalimantan,

"This office, which has been provided free of charge by some good friends of YUM, will provide an interim base for the management of those projects until YUM is able to obtain its own land and premises in the area," Olivia said.

A number of local dignitaries attended the opening including the Deputy-Mayor of Palangkaraya and a range of government representatives, while the timing of the opening, arranged to coincide with meetings held at the nearby Muhammad Subuh Centre in Rungan Sari, meant many international guests were also able to attend.

YUM was very pleased to be able to open the new office with guests from as far away as Africa, Europe and the USA, including World Subud Association Chair, Osanna Vaughn, and Susila Dharma International Association Chair, Sharifin Gardiner.

At the opening, the Deputy-Mayor of Palangkaraya read out a letter from the Mayor which asked for YUM's assistance in alleviating poverty not only in the area of Bukit Batu (YUM's current area of social work) but also in the city of Palangkaraya itself.

The Governor's wife, Mrs Teras Narang, also spoke about how YUM could work with other organisations in undertaking social work throughout the region.

New YUM office in Central Kalimantan

Following the official opening, guests were given a tour of the new premises and enjoyed lunch together with Mrs Teras Narang cutting the top off the traditional yellow rice mountain (tumpang).

The new YUM Village is located just 300 meters from the gates of Rungan Sari, a residential and commercial complex on the outskirts of the provincial capital city of Palangkaraya. The office site offers an excellent point of interaction between the residents of Rungan Sari (including the school Cita Bina Utama) and the local community.

A lack of human and physical resources sometimes made this challenging and, although there was some success in the delivery of activities, the decision was made to close the Learning Centre as of June 30, 2008.

Importantly, the one constant and arguably the most successful, aspect of the Learning Centre Project, the child sponsorships, will continue. In fact, without the expense of operating the Learning Centre, YUM will be able to offer more child sponsorships. Our VIDA volunteer, Candice O'Brien has recently restructured the sponsorships program to take advantage of that. More information on the new Child Sponsorship Program is available on page 8.

Farewell to the Learning Centre

In 2006, new laws were initiated that made government schools more accessible for all, and consequently the need for preparatory schools, such as the two that were being operated by YUM at the time in West Jakarta, was eliminated.

As a result of these changes, at the beginning of 2007, YUM consolidated the two schools into one Learning Centre at Pondok Aren.

Along with handling the administration of the school sponsorships that continued to be provided to children in the area, the Learning Centre Project operated in 2007 with the goal of providing learning activities to local children outside of school hours.

Through a small library at the Centre, tutorial support, and arts and sporting activities, YUM provided local children with opportunities to learn and, at the same time, have fun.

As YUM grows, we realise that we must evolve with our environment and that means constantly evaluating our projects to ensure they are providing the best services to destitute Indonesians for the money provided us by our generous donors.

YUM would like to thank everyone who has donated to, and worked on, the Preparatory Schools and Learning Centre, projects.

2nd YUM Team Building focuses on management effectiveness

In June, the second ever YUM staff 'Team Building' program was held at the YUM Children's Village in Cipanas. Following the success of last year's inaugural team building, a two-day program was held for more than 20 YUM staff from the head office in Jakarta and from all projects in Aceh, Kalimantan and West Java.

YUM board member Ari Prawoto and Nandang Noor from Subud Bandung developed and led the program that was designed to not only improve the bond between YUM staff but also give staff the opportunity to assess the YUM organization and have input on future direction.

Focus groups were held to give staff the opportunity to provide feedback to management, including on how YUM could support staff in performing their roles better. New Executive Director, Turmizi Ali, worked with all staff to clarify their roles within the organization and to identify what they could do to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of YUM.

YUM management and staff included those from West Java, Kalimantan, and Aceh

In addition to activities that were designed to help staff improve their ability to perform their jobs, participants of the team building program also enjoyed a host of social activities, including cross country trekking and games.

Feedback from all involved was excellent, with management taking away a number of new ideas and staff feeling that the lessons learnt and relationships formed over the two days would help them better perform their jobs. Such was the success that YUM will look to make this an annual event.

A very big thank you to the program facilitators, all participants, and to the staff at the Children's Village who were excellent hosts.

Welcome to our new Executive Director!

YUM is pleased to be able to introduce Turmizi Ali as the organisation's new Executive Director.

Turmizi has vast experience in project management for a range of Non-Government Organisations throughout Indonesia including Oxfam, Mercy Corp and, most recently, SurfAid where he was Field Manager for the Emergency Preparation Program.

Turmizi commenced with YUM in April and is already hard at work, working with staff across Indonesia to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the organisation.

"I am excited to be working for YUM as I believe it to be an organisation that does great work," Turmizi said.

"I hope to be able to support YUM in achieving its goals and ensuring the organisation is sustainable in the long-term."

Turmizi replaces Prasetya Subekti who has been YUM's Executive Director (ED) for the past 2½ years. Pras was the ED during a period of significant growth for YUM and has been integral to YUM achieving many successes during that time.

We thank Pras for all his hard work and we wish him the best for the future.

Through YUM Community Development Projects, we aim to improve the strength and sustainability of local communities throughout Indonesia.

Children's Village

In the first half of 2008, a number of key developments occurred at the Village:

Clean water installation

Thanks to the support of the Australian Embassy, a new water tower, pump and piping system has been installed, supplying the entire Village with a clean water source. The clean water will be used for drinking, washing and cleaning, and will significantly reduce the chance of health issues among staff and children.

Sewing course

The Village has expanded the sewing course that it offers to local women so that even more can now benefit from the program. The course teaches women sewing skills so that they can produce a range of products to sell to increase their income.

Birth Certificates

After a lengthy process undertaken by YUM staff, 100% of the children who live at the Children's Village and all those sponsored by YUM in the surrounding community now have a birth certificate.

Fifty million children in Indonesia do not have birth certificates, which creates problems in obtaining health care, education and employment.

Posyandu

A Posyandu (Community Integrated Health Services Post) has been established at the Village, offering local community members much-needed health services.

Located in the old TB clinic next to the Children's Village, the Community Health Post is regularly attended by women and children from the local area.

The Posyandu provides health services for mothers and their young children, including weighing and the distribution of food supplements.

A proud member of Susila Dharma Indonesia

Aceh Community Centre

The YUM Aceh Community Centre was established after the 2004 Tsunami devastated the region. In the time since, the ACC has become one of the leading providers of social welfare assistance in the Jaya Baru district of Banda Aceh, with local government and international aid organisations alike studying the center's operations and activities.

The ACC is constantly evolving to ensure that it meets the communities' social welfare needs during this period of reconstruction and rehabilitation of the Aceh region and, in the first half of 2008, delivered a range of activities:

Child creativity and talent scholarships

The ACC is providing scholarships to children throughout the region to participate in arts and sports. Close to 100 children have received scholarships in 2008 allowing them to participate in activities ranging from traditional Acehnese dancing to singing to football, while many more have benefited indirectly from the hosting of these activities.

These activities are important in providing social opportunities for children and strengthening the sense of community in the disaster-stricken region. Importantly, it is also promoting Acehnese culture by encouraging young people to learn and practice traditional dancing, singing, and art.

All of the activities at the centre are thanks to the support of the Japan National Council of Social Welfare who fully funds the project.

Day-care for children

The ACC provides day care to children that are from families from low socio-economic backgrounds. By taking care of children during the day, the ACC enables parents to work, earn an income, and so provide for their family.

In addition to standard day care activities, the ACC provides basic health assistance and guidance to all children, as well as specialist care when necessary.

In the first half of 2008 close to 20 children aged four and under attended the ACC on a daily basis.

Community-based home care for families

ACC staff have been working with government and community representatives to provide assistance and advice to families about child welfare in the region. In the first six months of 2008, YUM staff have been visiting three villages in the region each week and holding information and training sessions with mothers and their children.

The sessions provide information on all factors of child rearing such as: children's physical and socio-psychological growth and development; children's rights and protection; basic health control; and, nutritional advice. Importantly, the sessions also provide mothers with a forum to discuss the issues amongst themselves.

This program has proven to be very popular amongst the community with an average of 40 mothers and 40 children attending each session.

YUM Aceh Community Center is proudly sponsored by:
Japan National Council of Social Welfare

Micro-Credit Program

The micro-credit project grew significantly in the first half of 2008 with more than 40 new women receiving loans to assist them in increasing the revenue of their micro-enterprises.

The Micro-credit project provides women in Central Kalimantan with loans of approximately Rp500,000 (US$50) to invest in their small businesses. These women are predominantly farmers or owners of small shops who use the money to purchase products to improve the operation of their business and ultimately increase their income.

The new additions to the program not only receive a loan but, importantly, they also receive economic management training to help them learn to budget, improve their income, and develop savings.

The number of women involved in the Micro-Credit Program from January to June 2008 is as follows:

January 1, 2008

Hapakat	17
Total	33
June 30, 2008

Beneficiary Profile

Ibu Murti lives in the Banturung sub-district of Central Kalimantan with her husband and five children. As her husband is often sick, it is often up to Ibu Murti to provide for her whole family. That means earning enough money to feed everyone and send all her children to school.

Before becoming part of the Micro-Credit Program, Ibu Murti had a small shop selling basic products such as rice, oil and sugar. As a member of the Micro-Credit Program, Ibu Murti received a loan of Rp500,000 (US$50) which she used to buy additional products for sale, including petrol.

By selling new products, Ibu Murti has been able to increase her income allowing her to pay back the loan and have additional money to support her family.

New micro-credit recipients were made possible by the generous support of Susila Dharma Canada

Central Kalimantan is one of Indonesia's least developed regions, and residents suffer from a range of health issues. To address these issues YUM undertakes Health Projects throughout the region.

Clean Water

In February, YUM began a new project to provide people in Central Kalimantan with access to clean water as part of the Clean Water Program. The majority of communities throughout the Bukit Batu sub-district of Central Kalimantan do not have a clean water source, which causes a range of health problems. Access to clean water for drinking and domestic use is essential in reducing the spread of disease and improving overall community health.

YUM has already completed projects in three communities throughout Bukit Batu as part of the Clean Water Program, providing hundreds of families with access to clean water.

The project currently underway in the Banturung community will provide over sixty families with a clean water source.

Each project undertaken as part of the Clean Water Program includes the drilling of a water well, construction of a water tower, the installation of an electronic pump and importantly, piping that is connected to each of the homes in the community. Once completed, the facilities are managed by local community members in conjunction with YUM.

Mayor launches spraying

Habaring Hurung and Marang (to be followed by the other villages) are actively involved in the success of the program by taking responsibility for the recruitment of volunteers to man the Malaria Posts from among them, for which task they have received the necessary training. Malaria posts are needed to sustain the expected good results of the program beyond the project period through the continuation of malaria detection and prevention in the villages where they live.

Prior to April, a team was established and brochures and leaflets on Malaria were designed and printed, supplying the information needed for the training of staff and cadres to conduct and oversee the Malaria programs in the villages of Marang, Tumbang Tahai, Banturung, Habaring Hurung, Tengkilang and Sei Gohong.

In February, staff of YUM and the Polyclinic in Tengkilang started testing community members in the first two villages and recorded results. They showed that Malaria incidence was higher than hitherto anticipated by the Municipal Health Office. Medication is administered by the Polyclinic and records are shared with YUM.

The Malaria Control project which is complemented by clean drinking water installations in three villages and a community-led total sanitation program (latrines) is of great importance for the health of communities in the project region, and we wish to thank once more all those who have made this possible, namely the BMZ (Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development in Bonn, Germany), Susila Dharma Germany and the medical team of YUM for the years of preparatory work.

Education levels in Indonesia are amongst the worst in Asia, an issue that we are addressing through YUM Education Projects. We currently have education projects in West Java, Central Kalimantan, & Aceh that enables disadvantaged Indonesians, particularly children, access to educational opportunities.

School Sponsorship Program

In May 2008, YUM implemented a new system to administer school sponsorships to children in Jakarta as part of the Child Sponsorship Program.

YUM has been sponsoring children to receive an education for more than 20 years, but recent growth in the number of sponsorships being administered resulted in challenges in managing the program.

YUM staff and volunteers worked together with the families of children being sponsored to develop a system that was more efficient and effective in assisting these children to attend school.

Increased efficiency means more money going to the children that need it most and importantly, adequate support for families to ensure that money is being utilised as intended.

Project Manager Samsul said that the project was now better equipped to grow in the future.

"We thank all the people who have sponsored, and who are continuing to sponsor, children to receive an education through YUM.

"Without YUM support, these children would not have the opportunity to attend school and I hope that in the future we can offer more children in Indonesia that prospect."

To cover rising living costs in Indonesia, there have been minor adjustments to the cost of child sponsorships. The new sponsorship costs are below.

Community Libraries

In May 2008, YUM opened a new Library next to our office in Central Kalimantan. The library is designed to give the people of the Bukit Batu region the opportunity to access books, access they would otherwise not have.

Already the new Library has proven to be popular among local residents with visitors increasing each week. We feel that providing people, particularly children, with the opportunity and resources to read a vital part of their education and development.

We have quite a number of books in English donated by the Jakarta International School but need funding to purchase children books in Indonesian and would appreciate your help with this.

Adi Firdaus - A Children's Village success story

Adi with MSF Trustees Hannah Baerveldt and Simone Paige

Arriving at the Children's Village for the first time, Adi Firdaus was a nervous, scared and excited nine year old. Due to the difficult circumstance of his father's passing, which left the family of 9 children unprovided for, he was leaving his home in Sukabumi, West Java, to live at the Village with a group of children he didn't know, in a town he had never been to, and to attend a new school.

"Although I was nervous at the time, I realised that living at the Children's Village would be very good for me," Adi reflects, ten years after his original move to the Village.

"I enjoyed school and wanted to continue my education but when my father got sick, he could no longer provide for me and my 8 brothers and sisters, and after he passed away my mother brought me to the Children's Village as she could not feed us all.

"I was also comfortable because my older sister was already living at the Village and I felt having some family around would help me.

"Very quickly though, the other children and the staff at the Village became like my family. The elder children and staff would be like older sibling's and parents, helping the younger ones and giving us guidance."

Today Adi, at 19, is one of the seniors at the Village and is a role model for the younger children. He takes particular interest in helping the children when they first arrive at the Village, remembering what it was like for him.

"All the children come here from situations like mine," Adi said. "Their families cannot afford to support them and send them to school, so they come to the Village.

"All the children who have been here for a long time and all the staff make a big effort to make the new children feel welcome, and soon they become part of the 'Village family'."

Having already completed his high school certificate, Adi is now studying for a university degree with the support of the YUM Talent Development Scholarship (TDS) program.

"When I finished high school I really wanted to go to university to study computers but knew the cost would make it impossible for my family to afford."

"I applied to the YUM TDS program and thankfully received a scholarship to study Information Management at Putra Indonesia University".

"YUM covers all my living, transport and education costs which I am very grateful for. If I had not received the scholarship I would have had to return to my family in Sukabumi and don't know if I would have been able to find work there."

When Adi finishes university he plans on becoming a computer programmer for an organisation in one of the bigger cities in West Java. He hopes that the money he gets from that job will allow him to support his mother and family back in Sukabumi.

"Coming to live at the Village has changed my life. I have now got the opportunity to get a university degree which will allow me to follow my dream of becoming a computer programmer. I have also made so many friends living here.

"In my time living at the Village, I hope that I can help other children and show them that if they work hard at school then they too can go to university and in the future get a good job."

Adi's scholarship is made possible through the generous support of the Muhammad Subuh Foundation and the Farkas Fund

Corporate Sponsorship Packages

Here at YUM, we rely on the generous donations of individuals, families and groups from all over the world to operate our projects.

Without this support, from people like you, YUM would not exist and the assistance that was provided to close to 15,000 destitute Indonesians in 2007 would no have been possible.

We recognise though, that for YUM to continue to grow in the future, and ultimately, for us to be able to deliver better quality projects that assist more Indonesians, we need additional support.

It is for this reason that YUM recently launched our Corporate Sponsorship Packages. These packages are designed to create mutually beneficial relationships between YUM and private businesses.

There are two levels of Corporate Sponsorship available, providing organisations with a range of tangible benefits and, of course, the knowledge they are supporting the assistance of destitute people throughout Indonesia, via their financial support of YUM.

Below is an overview of the two levels of sponsorship, but we are more than happy to tailor any package to organisations' individual needs. For more information on the YUM Corporate Sponsorship Packages please contact us.
