Welcome to the Annual Report of the Susila Dharma International Association for 2020!

Dear Friends and Supporters,

What a year it has been!

2020 was a year of both endings and beginnings. Too many lost their lives in the global pandemic, and some continue to experience the residual effects of the virus on their health.

On the other hand, 2020 brought us closer in many ways – through regular zoom meetings and the many opportunities we created to share our work, we learned to collaborate without so much travel. We were able to lessen our environmental footprint by staying closer to home. We were reminded of the value of local community, patience with ourselves, kindness to a neighbour and the meaning of sacrifice as shown by the dedication of healthcare and other essential workers who daily give up their own safety and security to care and provide for others.

We give thanks to our SD project leaders all around the world who saw many of their planned activities turned upside down, but who bounced back, finding new and innovative ways to meet local needs. Thanks to you – our donors and members – for supporting the SD International Network to meet the challenge of this global pandemic. It there is anything we have learned from 2020 it is to expect the unexpected.

That is why we invite each and every one of you, today, to consider today a donation to the SDIA Endowment Fund: to make sure that the SD network will be able to respond to now and in the future to circumstances that we cannot yet imagine, guided from within to take action in the world.

Susila Dharma International Association (SDIA) is an association promoting just and sustainable development. With activities in 26 countries, SDIA has 21 voting and 32 associate members. We form a global community committed to ‘building with humanity’.

SDIA was founded in 1968 and is an affiliate organization of the World Subud Association (WSA) with a mandate to implement the charitable aims of Subud. ‘Susila Dharma’ (SD) can be translated as ‘guided from within to take action in the world’.

SDIA is a US-registered non-profit organization (US Charitable tax No. 98-0156249) and holds special consultative status with the United Nations Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC), UNICEF and the Department of Public Information (DPI). SDIA is governed by an international board and by the decisions of voting members at the Annual General Meeting.

This Annual Report covers the activities of SDIA and its services to members for the year 2020. It does not cover the activities and achievements of all 53 members. You can get more information about SDIA and its members at www.susiladharma.org
SDIA equips our network of 53 social change organizations with critical resources to nourish, strengthen and protect local communities. SDIA connects local SD teams with resources, training, expertise, project management and financing.

Through connections, collaboration, and knowledge sharing, each member organization of SDIA can build capacity in key areas identified for sustainable futures: education, health, livelihoods, and environment.

SDIA works globally for just and sustainable development through:

- Empowering individuals and communities to engage in positive human, social and economic change; and
- Creating partnerships to achieve grassroots, participatory initiatives.

In 2020, SDIA spent $51,347 to deliver services and technical support to its members and distributed $108,624 in grants to projects. SD Nationals also provide grants directly to projects and most of these do not go through SDIA.

In order to provide a source of stable funding, SDIA maintains an Endowment Fund, valued at $1,181,260 at the end of 2020. Our Endowment Fund allows SDIA to deliver its programmes and services, provides grants to its members and affiliates, and contributes to the sound administration and good governance of SDIA.

Many thanks to all those whose gifts have helped grow our Endowment Fund to sustain the work of SDIA and its members (see pages 18-19 for a list of all our donors).

Please help us grow SDIA’s Endowment Fund to support projects today and in the future!
2020: Our Reach

Thanks to Your Generosity … SDIA gave humanitarian assistance – close to home and far away

Dharma Care steps in to help neighbours who lost homes in the Bushfires

We can all remember the images as fires engulfed homes and destroyed wildlife. A bad fire season in Australia worsened significantly in late 2019. Hotter temperatures, drought and high winds escalated the crisis by February 2020. In mid-February heavy rains allowed firefighters to contain all of the fires in New South Wales (NSW), although fires continued to burn in Victoria. By March 4, 2020 – nine months after the first ones began to burn – the main fires were finally brought under control, but the damage done to property, lives and livelihoods was massive.

SDIA was proud to support Dharma Care, when it stepped in to help neighbours in the Kyogle Shire of northern New South Wales where Dharma Care’s Sine Cera property is located. According to Irwan Wyllie, CEO of Dharma Care: “In the Currawinya area in particular, there were 20 impacted families. It is important to understand that for these people, the nightmare of their situation will continue for a long time to come. On some properties, families lost everything and struggled to buy food, clothing, linen, and create temporary accommodation and toilet facilities on their rural blocks. In many cases they were not insured.”

With a matching grant from SDIA, Dharma Care was able to reach its fundraising target and provide eight families in Kyogle Shire with financial support to get back on their feet. Working with the NSW Department of Primary Industry, the Kyogle Shire Council, the Red Cross, and the Kyogle Shire Financial Counsellor, Dharma Care asked recipients to identify local businesses that could meet their needs. The recipients were then sent a Dharma Care gift voucher for their nominated business. In this way, they were able to assist both the donation recipient and local businesses that had also been affected by the fires. In some cases, people needed furniture, in others hardware or feedstock, and so on. All recipients were overwhelmed by the unexpected gift. One wrote as follows:

“We are very grateful for your assistance. Last year was a year from hell for us as beef cattle producers: we lost so much due to the drought and then we had the bush fires. Words cannot describe the way we felt. Even as I write this I get teary-eyed because nobody can understand the constant feeling of hopelessness that comes with the realization that everything you have worked so hard for all of your life is slowly being ripped from you. We have not received any momentary help to date in regards to the fires and no government help for the drought either. Norco has contacted us to confirm your kind gift which we will use to pay off our feed bill. We can’t thank you enough and please pass on our very heartfelt gratitude to all of your kind hearted and generous donors. Thank you, thank you.”

Subud Lebanon activates in response to the Beirut Explosion

In the midst of the pandemic, the Beirut port blast on 4 August 2020 ripped a city to shreds and reopened old wounds for a fragile population already facing civil unrest and ongoing socio-economic crisis. The blast killed more than 178 people, left more than 6,500 injured, 300,000 homeless, and severely damaged critical health infrastructure and medical supplies. We are thankful to members of Subud Lebanon who joined together to try to address the needs they saw around them. Thanks to your generous support, sent through SDIA, they were able to help more than 20 families rebuild their homes and their lives.

Supporting SD Projects to adapt to the Pandemic

Just as the bush fires were being brought under control in Australia, the world was gearing up for a new disaster. On March 11, the World Health Organisation declared the COVID 19 epidemic a global pandemic – one that would go on to ravage lives, jobs and economies. SD Projects took on new challenges and the SD Network was able to send funds to more than 10 projects to help them address the pressing and emerging needs in their communities (see stories below).

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

On the behalf of every Subud member in Lebanon and of every beneficiary who received the donation, we thank you for your contribution. It was our first initiation in the name of Subud here, and we’d love to share the experience with you.

After receiving the donation through SDIA, we got a list of people affected by the explosion. We contacted them and gathered data. On first of October, our sister Hana Sfeir held a meeting at her place in Ashrafieh. We discussed each beneficiary’s state and the amount to be offered to each. Then Rima, Talal-Muchsin and I, visited each beneficiary home, listened to their experience of the explosion time and their daily life challenges.

To each one of them, the explosion was severely traumatizing and beyond the mind to believe its massive effects. The closer to the explosion site, the more severe were the injuries and the damage to buildings. Many lost their businesses, jobs and cars. Nearly everyone reported that the renovation support from NGOs is slow and at times absent. As a result, they had to fix their homes on their own expenses and/or in debt.

We approached them with empathy. We introduced ourselves as members of Subud organization, explained how our organization cares for humanity worldwide and about the offered donation. They expressed their appreciation and deep gratitude with tears, open hearts and genuine prayers for the donors and us as facilitators.

In parallel, our sisters Nadia Yehya and Rania Chouman visited our Subud sister Mary Madeleine whose house was seriously affected by the explosion and offered her an amount that allows her to finish the renovation.

After the distribution, the remaining balance was donated to Beirut Relief, an NGO initiated by Engineering University students directly after the explosion that has been working on ground since then.

We, Subud members, thank you all for your generosity, and thoughtfulness. May Almighty God repay you all many, manyfold.

Love and respect,

Saleema, Subud Lebanon
Health and Well-Being
Showing the Evidence

Physical and mental health are fundamental to achieving our human potential. The COVID-19 pandemic has highlighted health inequities in almost all countries: even where health systems provide a decent level of coverage, those socio-economic inequalities can make a huge difference to health outcomes. Between countries, the story is the same. Some countries lack the basic requirements in personal protective equipment for health workers, and the means to carry out mass testing and vaccination campaigns.

At the SDIA AGM in August 2020, a key topic of discussion was the important role our health centres and projects can play in generating evidence to guide health decisions, policies and practice at the local, regional and national levels.

As a network we committed to challenging ourselves to make sense of the health data we are collecting to improve our own performance and share knowledge with others working the same fields. In 2020, based on the fieldwork done by the Wawa Illari team in Peru in the two previous years, SDIA supported the publication of an article in the journal Frontiers of Public Health.

A Multi-Sectoral Approach Improves Early Child Development in a Disadvantaged Community in Peru: Role of Community Gardens, Nutrition Workshops and Enhanced Caregiver-Child Interaction: Project “Wawa Illari” demonstrates how the project helped to mitigate the impact of adversity on food insecurity and language delay. SDIA offers to interested health researchers, students and practitioners the opportunity to collaborate to assist health projects better achieve their goals.

Sending Emergency Medical Supplies and support to 4 health and hospital centers in the DRC

During a pandemic, no institution is more affected than hospitals and clinics. In the Democratic Republic of the Congo, a country damaged by under-investment in its healthcare system, the four community health centres run by SD Congo were particularly vulnerable and in need of special protective equipment. SDIA donor support enabled SDIA Chair, Evan Padilla, to personally ensure that 20 Thermo-flash contactless thermometers, 3,000 disposable gloves and 500 medical masks be sent to SD Congo to protect our health team when these were unavailable even in the most developed countries. On distribution, care providers were briefed about the disease by the medical team of SD Congo. Restrictions on movement posed a potential challenge, particularly to reach the provinces and the city centre of Kinshasa. Fortunately, SD Congo’s jeep bearing its logo as a humanitarian organization made it possible to cross various barriers!
Growing a network of Health Service Centres

In 2020, SDIA continued to support SD Congo in its management and development of a network of Health Mutual Associations, hospital and healthcare centres serving five communities in Kinshasa and Central Congo Provinces. After opening to the public in 2017, the Mother-Child Hospital Centre of Kwilu Ngongo brought improved maternal and neo-natal care to the Health Zone. By the end of the year, 3,800 people were registered in the new Health Mutual Association, surpassing planned membership rates.

SDIA, along with members SD Congo, SD Germany and SD Canada and financial support from the Buchan International Fund and the German Government (BMZ), was able to continue the Phase II extension of the Mother-Child Hospital Centre to include a new paediatric wing, medical imaging, a surgery and morgue. These services will dramatically improve the quality of healthcare for the 52,000 inhabitants of Kwilu Ngongo and patients coming from as far afield as the Angolan border.

Supporting YUM to distribute relief packages

Thanks to generous donations from around the world, SDIA was able to support Yayasan Usaha Mulia (YUM) to provide emergency relief to support the underprivileged people during this pandemic. In Cipanas, West Java, YUM focused on providing support to the elderly, single parents, and daily wagers, who don’t have the luxury of working from home and who are already struggling to survive.

The support provided to the communities was in the form of hygiene kits and basic food necessities. The COVID-19 relief packages included informational leaflets on COVID-19 prevention, masks, soaps, and food packages.

These were distributed to more than 3,000 families. 2,775 hygiene kits and 1,295 food packages were distributed.

In Bukit Batu, Kalimantan, YUM focused on spreading information about the dangers of COVID-19 and how to prevent contagion using videos sent to various social media platforms as well as printing banners, posters and flyers that were placed in 14 different locations. As many families do not have phones or television, the banners and posters provided essential information about COVID-19 and the steps needed to prevent being infected.

YUM also distributed more than 2,000 hygiene kits and 1,600 food packages. A further 577 families were helped to enter the government aid program which supports poor families with cash transfers for the next 3 months.
Mis Corazones Alegres, Colombia – protecting the most vulnerable

This eldercare centre in Colombia caters for a section of the population most vulnerable to the coronavirus. Thanks to your support, in 2020 SDIA was able to assist Mis Corazones Alegres to provide safer care to its elderly residents by investing in an infrared thermometer, a UV lamp to disinfect surfaces as well as personal protective gear such as gloves, masks anti-bacterial lotion and disinfectant, thus protecting both staff and the older people who have high rates of mortality if they catch COVID-19. It also bought some essential medicines, unperishable foodstuffs and personal hygiene item for the elderly.

Child Development, Protection and Education

Supporting Education and Educators through the pandemic

The pandemic turned our normal practices and assumptions regarding education upside down. For children, parents and teachers alike, it has been challenging to adapt to the lockdowns and school closures experienced in so many countries. Thankfully SD projects and practitioners have helped children, families and teachers as they have adapted to new circumstances with some very positive results.

Supporting Ethum House’s Lockdown Educational programming

In 2020, SDIA supported the Emergency Appeal of Enthum House (EH), a new member to our network which provides a home for young asylum-seekers in the United Kingdom. During the lockdown, as schools and colleges closed, EH needed to adapt their educational programmes quickly, so it mobilised support that allowed them to put together an emergency intensive English programme with English as Second or Other Language Tutor (ESOL), David Perry. This ran from May to August with group and individual classes almost every week day.
Learning English in lockdown brought the young residents together as a community, enabling them to talk to each other, the team and the outside world. It kept them occupied and stimulated through challenging times, and helped them prepare for starting college in September. “As ever, I’m struck by the resilience and eagerness of the young people in their approach to learning,” says David.

According to Enthum’s co-CEO, Jo McDonald: “Every penny was used for our Emergency English language programme, and the support that we received meant that everyone managed to start their English as a Second or Other Language (ESOL) courses at colleges locally at a great advantage in September. The intensive support they received gave them a great foundation to build on and also supported their community together in the house and bonding through their common language. We honestly can’t thank your supporters enough.”

ICDP Training and Support to teachers in Quindío, Colombia

SDIA support enabled ICDP Colombia to strengthen the capacity of teachers in the La Tebaida, near Amanecer, to improve the quality of interactions inside the classroom; to enable teachers to deliver the ICDP course to parents so as to enhance their parenting skills and sensitivity towards children; and to promote in the educational community in positive coexistence and communication through the application of the ICDP principles. The ICDP training was initially aimed at primary school teachers, but there was a request to include secondary school teachers as well. The work was supposed to start in March 2020, but due to the COVID-19 pandemic this was not possible and the first activities began in August.

Since the planned workshops could not take place in person due to the government restrictions, trainers conducted weekly ICDP Reflection Forums via Zoom, each lasting one hour and a half. These virtual meetings were attended by two groups of teachers in the period between September and December 2020. One group was comprised of 19 primary school teachers and the other of 23 secondary school teachers.

The ICDP trainers soon realized that the teachers were experiencing high levels of stress. “Due to the lockdown and the impossibility of face-to-face classes, teachers had to reorganize their work, develop new pedagogies, methodologies and technological tools. They had to prepare entirely new materials designed for children to learn each subject with the support of their parents. We soon realized that the educational system needed to guarantee not only the protection of the teachers’ jobs but that it was crucial it also took care of the teachers’ well-being, to help reduce levels of exhaustion and stress. As trainers we showed our appreciation and recognized the hard work that teachers had assumed during the pandemic, and we adapted our ICDP agenda in order to provide a special space for teachers to express themselves, talk about their situations and to give them emotional support,” says ICDP Colombia Executive Director Anisah Andrade.

I Protect Me – transforming a challenge

In South Africa, schools were forced to close due to COVID-19 leading to rising rates of teenage pregnancy and substance-abuse. At the same time, many families were left destitute, with no income, as well as sometimes struggling to cope with the loss of loved ones. With the support of SDIA and the SD Network, I Protect Me (IPM) was able to draft alternative plans to reach its beneficiaries.

According to IPM’s new Executive Director, Cindy Martins: “Whilst the world is faced with challenges, this has created opportunities to come up with innovative ways to focus on our youth.” To reach children, the team visited soup kitchens and introduced a reading club.
for young children; a platform for women was created to share their frustrations and hopes, with a focus on women’s rights; and embarking on a door-to-door campaign allowed the team to get in touch with community members, sharing information and becoming a beacon of hope to those who felt cut off from essential services.

IPM referred at least twenty young women for counselling and other support. One young woman (19) was admitted to a place of safety after she attended a Gender-based-violence support group workshop. With no family to support her, she desperately needed to escape from an unbearable situation. IPM also went out on the streets to train people on self-defence and Covid-19 and gender-based violence prevention. “I SAY STOP” was sung throughout the streets of Port Elizabeth in South Africa,” says Cindy.

Developing the proposal for 3 Community Learning Centres in the DRC

From February 20 to March 5 2020, right before the pandemic was declared, SD Canada-SDIA sent a team to the DRC to develop a proposal to the Canadian government to create 3 Community Learning Centres (CLCs) for Women and Girls over the coming 5 years. Our experience in the SD Health centres in the DR Congo shows a very high rate of early marriage – girls marrying at puberty often find themselves pregnant with their first child by the age of 14 or 15 years old. Only 25.6% of girls in Central Kongo province have had access to high school education. With the support of the Blond Trust and Buchan International Fund, the CLCs will teach basic literacy, numeracy and business creation skills to those previously deprived of an education.

Subud Education Association takes its place

Finally, 2020 saw the coming together of the Subud Education Association (SEA) under the auspices of SDIA. The mission of the Subud Education Association is to bring together Subud Educators from all over the world for support, inspiration and guidance. SEA is dedicated to the inward and outward development of individuals of all ages, so they may contribute to a just, caring and fulfilled global community. SDIA has helped SEA establish its activities and provides administration, communications and other support services to help it achieve its objectives. By the end of 2020, SEA had 250 participants engaged through its outreach work. If you are a current, former or aspiring educator and want to be involved with SEA, contact SEA Coordinator Hadrian Pollard: hadrian.pollard@gmail.com.
Sustainable Livelihoods and Environment

The importance of food security during a pandemic

Last year it was uplifting to bear witness to the long-term benefits of SD projects which are laying the bedrock for more sustainable and resilient communities. Early in 2020, SDIA asked SD projects to tell us how they were coping with the challenges of government restrictions, lockdown measures and school closures. We received this good news from Anisha Foundation, which has been working for the past five years to promote kitchen gardens through local schools. During the pandemic, this investment has truly paid off in terms of generating widespread food security for local families when parents lost their jobs to the pandemic.

Project lead Valli Krishnaswamy wrote: “Our staff are contacting students over phone and talking to them about how to maintain the gardens, suggesting to plant more vegetable and greens, telling them to save the seeds, and to stay safe at home etc. Some of the parents said the kitchen garden is extremely useful in the present circumstances of lockdown. They are realizing the actual importance of their children’s kitchen garden and how it is helping the whole family in the present crisis.

At the same time the parents are also taking a keen interest in the gardens.”

With the support of SDIA and the SD Network, Anisha went on to provide much-needed relief when the Indian Government ordered a countrywide lockdown with 4 hours’ notice. Migrant workers panicked and rushed to their hometowns, some walking hundreds of miles without water and food. The lockdown left tens of millions of migrant workers unemployed and their native villages unable to cope with the influx. Through a collective effort by Anisha, St. Joseph’s Convent and teachers from Martalli, 3,020 food kits were distributed to in the area. Many local people teamed up and volunteered with Anisha to pack, load, unload and distribute food kits to all the needy families, thus saving thousands of men, women and children from hunger and malnutrition.
Communications, Publications and Outreach

SDIA holds consultative status with the UN through ECOSOC (the United Nations Economic and Social Council), UNICEF and DPI (Department of Information). This provides SDIA and its member projects with a platform for sharing our good practices and learning with governments and NGOs from around the world. SDIA shares publications and opportunities from different United Nations agencies and other organizations with its members.

SDIA gathers stories and information about our members to engage others in our activities – volunteers, donors, partners and the general public. In 2020 the SDIA office published four eNewsletters in three languages which focussed on and introduced our four newest project members, as well as six fundraising campaigns, two of which were emergency appeals.

On-going communications included updating the website www.susiladharma.org and maintaining and expanding our online presence via Facebook, Instagram and Twitter. We also produced one issue of our internal news bulletin through which projects and SD Nationals share announcements and stories with other members.

SDIA Board, Management and Administration

SDIA is run by an international Board of Directors, which meets annually to set policy and review progress towards the goals of the Association. In 2020, the SDIA Board was unable to meet in person due to the pandemic. Instead, the Board has consistently met via Zoom teleconference, every month of the year, and also participated in our Virtual AGM and other online events with members.

SDIA Strengthens the Network

Members Meeting

As with so many other events, SDIA’s Annual Members’ Meeting was held on-line. The disadvantage was not being able to be together in person, but the advantage was that our members’ meeting was truly representative and inclusive of all the countries in our Network. Held over 7 days in July and August 2020, our members participated in a number of workshops and presentations to share their experiences and improve our collaboration.

Ensure the future of SD Work in the World – Support the SDIA Endowment Fund

SDIA projects work to solve real-world problems and bring innovative solutions, inspired from within. As humanity evolves, our problems change, but unfortunately never really go away. It is impossible today to fully predict what tomorrow’s problems will look like, but we hope to be there to bring our skills, empathy and guidance to those most affected. Who would have predicted the current COVID-19 Pandemic? And yet with your support and our international network, we are bringing help to many of those most vulnerable to its effects.

What is the legacy you would like to leave? What can you do today to help address tomorrow’s problems? Contact the SDIA office at virginia@susiladharma.org to explore how you can leave a lasting legacy to support the future of SD work in the world.
Making connections
One donor’s story – Robert Merten’s Art for Enthum Fundraising Campaign

Susila Dharma is about sharing what you have with those who have less – it can be your time, your talent, or your art as in the case of Robert Mertens. In 2020, SDIA showcased Enthum House in our eNews and on reading the story, US artist Robert Mertens was inspired to initiate a fundraiser for the project. He has decided to raffle prints of one of his beautiful prints – Angel of Refuge.

Robert explains: “I am an artist and my mother was an artist. When my mother was young, she won a national prize for a beautiful watercolor called ‘Choir of Angels’. Choir of Angels was the only one of her pictures that she had in her room during her final years. I visited her in Virginia just before she died and saw the picture again. When I returned to my home to California, I thought, ‘I’m going to make a choir of 12 angels, one for each month in the coming year. I will do it to honor my mother.’ So I did. Last February, I saw the newsletter about Enthum House, and it caught my attention. I was very moved by the safety, hope, and opportunity Enthum House is giving to these young people in desperate need. I could have sent some money but something possibly better came to me. ‘I am an artist. I can help Enthum house more with my art than with my money.’ I realised I could leverage donations to Enthum with a crowd-sourced fund drive and give some of my fine art prints for people who donate above certain amounts as perks.

I chose ‘Angel of Refuge’ as the most fitting picture to help Enthum House grow and prosper. The picture shows the world, safe and at peace in the embrace of God. The angel is swooping down and sheltering us in its heart. It offers our world up to God with a prayer of Love and Gratitude.”

Thank you, Robert, for your generous initiative which represents the essence of SD – giving of yourself. Robert helped us raise money for Enthum house, but also gave a lot of joy to those who won his art in the raffle!
